

Greg Sandow
Writer, Teacher, Change Agent

Greg Sandow is a composer, a veteran critic, and a writer, teacher, and consultant who works on projects about the future of classical music. He speaks widely in the U.S. and abroad on that subject, has done projects and consulting about it with classical music institutions, and teaches about it at Juilliard, where he's a member of the Graduate Studies Faculty.

He thinks classical music is changing dramatically, and will transform itself, to join the rest of our culture. Blind Ear is part of that change!
