Jon Weber, Chicago Symphony Orchestra
Alan Brown and Dennie Palmer Wolf, WolfBrown
Introductions: The People and the Project

• Jon Weber, Director of Learning Programs, Institute for Learning, Access, and Training, The Chicago Symphony Orchestra
• Alan Brown, Principal, WolfBrown
• Dennie Palmer Wolf, Principal, WolfBrown

• 3-year joint evaluation project
Agenda

• Introductions and Overview
• Big Idea: Inquiry-driven data collection
• CSO & WolfBrown partnership: Three examples of Inquiry-driven data collection
  1. Focus Group work: How do we build the arc of engagement?
  2. Survey work: installing an ongoing assessment capacity
  3. Data Partnership with Marketing: How do we build life-long affiliation with the orchestra and live music?
• Discussion and wrap-up
Inquiry-driven Impact Assessment

- Impact assessment: A look at the full range of immediate, short, and longer term effects of a program on its participants
- Inquiry-driven: All data collection should:
  - Help you answer an important question at the core of how you design and conduct programs
  - Yield actionable findings (e.g., make a difference), helping you to “curate” every aspect of what you do
  - Engage as many staff/departments as can contribute to the effectiveness of your programs

Major components of evaluation

• Review and revision of guiding language
• Development of tools to assess programs using a common set of metrics
• Development of tools to look deeply at individual programs’ impact
• Staff capacity building
• Metrics for assessing Institute programs over time, beyond ticket sales, “hits”, to impact
One major recommendation: Two continuous pathways
Case Study: Family Matinee Concerts
Inquiry-driven Impact Assessment
Family Matinee Concerts

• What draws patrons to these concerts?
• How do families currently engage with these concerts?
• What are the most impactful elements of the concerts?
• Where are the places where we could deepen engagement for any specific event?
• How could we build the long-term engagement of families?
1) Focus Group Methodology:

The Inquiry:
What’s the arc of engagement for a concert?
How do we build that arc into longer-term loyalty?
Two “Formulae”
Two “Formulae”
Focus Group Research Goals

• What makes for engagement?
• What is the arc of engagement from week prior to the week following the concert?
• What do the data suggest about increasing engagement? In a single concert? Across concerts? Across the age span?
Details of Methodology

• Collaborative design of Family Engagement booklet linked to concert content
• Enroll participating families in tracking what they do (Total n = 23, across two sessions)
• Focus group Interviews with staff post concert
• Phone interviews a week later
• Mail back booklets
• Code data into themes, simple graphics, draw implications
• Two rounds: February, May
EN G A G E M E N T
What is the arc of engagement?

• There can be a much longer arc of musical engagement
  – Anticipation phase is especially “ripe” for extension
  – Desire for portable, quick-access, web-based materials (as compared to print booklet ahead)
  – Just-in-time invitations
  – Refreshed pre-concert rotunda activities
  – “Make-a-day of it” profiles
  – Can be a much larger part of family life, especially for subscribers over time
Possibility of a Life-span Approach

• Potential to be a 3-generational event
• Parents and grandparents want to invest in “passing on” tradition of live music
• Families don’t want their adolescents “age-ing out”, want to continue the tradition
• But the longer “arc” breaks at pre-teen years
• Conventional wisdom “That’s just what happens.”
• But does it have to?
2) Survey Methodology:

The Inquiry:
What is the current impact of a single performance?
Could that be increased?
How?
Survey Research Goals

• Measure the impact of Family Matinee programs on children and families
• Inform the design of future programs
• Design and test a new feedback system with CSO audiences & staff
Topics

• Social construction of the visit
• Reasons for attending
• Preparation: attitudes and behaviors
• Child’s experience at the concert
  – Anticipation, captivation, social interaction
• Adult’s impressions of the program
  – Tied to outcome rubric developed for the Institute
• Family outcomes
Sample questions

• In general, how do you feel about doing activities with your child(ren), either at home or at Symphony Center, in order to enhance their experience at concerts?
  – I feel strongly that preparing makes a difference in my child(ren)’s experience of the concert
  – I feel somewhat strongly, or have mixed feelings about it
  – I don't feel that preparing makes a difference to my children’s experience of the concerts
Sample Questions

• Did you do any activities with your child(ren) prior to the concert, with the specific intention of building their excitement for the concert, or enhancing their learning?
  – Yes/No
Sample Questions
(in reference to the youngest child in the party over 5 years of age)

• What was this child’s level of excitement or anticipation leading up to the concert?
  – Scaled response: low to high

• What contributed most to heightening this child’s level of excitement in advance of the concert?
  – open-ended response

• Overall, how captivated or absorbed was this child during the concert? In other words, how well did the concert hold his or her attention?
  Scaled response: low to high
Sample Questions (adult’s impressions)

• With its family concerts, the CSO strives to strike a balance between programs that are fun/entertaining and programs that are educational. How did we do for this program?
  – Too entertaining, and not educational enough
  – Good balance
  – Too educational, and not entertaining enough
Sample Questions (adult’s impressions)

• Rate your opinion of the program on each of the following elements.
  – Quality of the design of the artistic program – how well conceived was this program in terms of the selection of pieces, educational content, etc.
  – Quality of the music making by the conductor and musicians of the CSO
  – Quality of support you received from the CSO in maximizing the impact of the program for your child(ren)
Sample Questions (Family Outcomes)

Implications from Marketing Data

- Emphasis on extending engagement in FMS
- Strengthens case for teen program design
- Engages a larger group of staff from multiple departments in inquiry
Actions based on findings

• Increase engagement
• Just-in-time resources to build anticipation
• Compact and portable resources: Spotify, trailers, email invitations
• Ways to make a shared day of it
  – Renewing the pre-concert activities so there is always a reason to come early and enact the musical content
  – Itinerary for day in downtown: The lake, May picnic in park
• Curating the concerts for their musical content
• Building out the experience for older ages
Conclusions

• The importance of inquiry-driven data collection
• The time to interrogate the data for implications
• The will to transform implication to actions
