come from a region that is proud of its ancient and enduring civilization. This is a place of vibrant dance and song. It is also a place that has been open to influences from the world outside for centuries. We must uphold that spirit of openness because we, as human beings, are the better for it. Despite the political boundaries that divide the nations of South Asia, there is an urge to coexist in harmony.

We created Chiragh—the South Asian Symphony Orchestra because we believe music speaks the language of peace. There is magic to music. It rises above the strife between nations. The right to music is a basic human right. Our musicians come from Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Nepal, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, and the South Asian diaspora who have made their homes in the United States and Europe. Some of them are as young as thirteen, some are refugees from war, and they are drawn from different walks of life. One of our young Afghan members says that music has changed his world and that his aim in life is to “overcome the sound of war with the sound of music.” These are words spoken by a young soul who has witnessed unspeakable horrors of conflict and terrorism.

In our first concert in Mumbai, India in April 2019, the orchestra demonstrated what South Asians can do when they collaborate with true commitment and discipline, through music. One of the pieces in this debut concert was Hamsafar—A Musical Journey through South Asia, commissioned for the occasion by the Afghanistan National Institute of Music’s Lauren Braithwaite, which drew inspiration from the songs sung in the different countries of the region. “Hamsafar” means fellow-voyager or traveler—which we all are, as we strive to realize a better future for the 1.5 billion people who inhabit South Asia.

Western-style symphony orchestras are not very common in our region. But the musical talents of our peoples are rich and outstanding. Our composers, such as the Oscar-winning A.R. Rahman (Slumdog Millionaire), have won fame worldwide. Building a world-class symphony orchestra takes years of rigorous training, and our work has only begun. We will strive hard to build ties of cooperation with great orchestras around the world. We also want to build a repertoire for orchestras of music from South Asia, this crucible of rich cultures.

Integration within South Asia and between South Asia and the rest of the world must become stronger. Music offers one way of doing this. Its language is universal. Cooperation and empathy can help us overcome many challenges: the threat of war, injustice against women and children, environmental damage, religious persecution, ignorance and racial prejudice, and much more. Music upholds the spirit of freedom against domination and oppression.

The happiest part of this whole experience has been to witness the passion, commitment, and discipline of our musicians in Chiragh—the South Asian Symphony Orchestra. They exemplify true generosity of spirit and the joy of giving. Strangers become friends.
The League of American Orchestras invites executive directors and youth orchestra administrators to attend its 2020 Mid-Winter Managers Meeting, an unequalled opportunity to meet, learn, and share with peers about the latest and most important trends and issues in the field.

2020 MID-WINTER MANAGERS MEETING

SAVE THE DATES

January 25–26: Pre-Meeting Seminar
January 26–27: Managers Meeting

Marriott East Side Hotel
525 Lexington Avenue
New York, NY

Take advantage of the League’s special group rate of $164 plus tax per night. Reserve your room by calling 800 228 9290 and mentioning the League of American Orchestras or by heading to the website below for a direct link to our room reservation block. Rooms must be reserved by January 10, 2020 to receive this discount.

Mid-Winter Registration Rates:
- Managers, Groups 1-8 Attendance: $255
- Youth Orchestra Division Attendance: $220
- Pre-Conference Seminar Participation: $255

No increase in pricing for the 3rd straight year! Registration will open in November.

Watch your email for more information or visit americanoorchestras.org/conferences-meetings.
TCG

ENTERTAINMENT
2020-2021 Roster
Your One Stop Shop For Symphony Pops

Cirque Musica
Cirque Musica Holiday
Cirque Musica Presents Crescendo
Cirque Musica Presents Heroes & Villains
Cirque Musica Presents Maestro

Thematic
Spies Lies & Treble Clefs
Starlets - Women of Song

Headliners
A Night of Symphonic Hip Hop
Kenny G with Symphony

Music
A Night of Symphonic 90s
A Night of Symphonic Metal
A Night of Symphonic R&B
A Night of Symphonic Rock
Faithfully - The Music of Journey
Rewind - Celebrating the Music of the 80's

Now Booking, Please Contact:
Stephen Cook | steve@tcgent.com | 972-727-7779 or Nick Whitaker | nick@heymickey.co | 413-717-2538

www.TCGENT.com